It is an essential part of my professional service to keep full and accurate records of all clients, including medical history, ongoing updates about each client's health and wellbeing and records of all treatment sessions. This is in order to provide the very best tailored, safe and effective treatments and to evaluate the process of a programme of treatments.

I, Anne Taylor collect and process personal data you give me for this purpose.

You can refuse to provide the information, but if you decline to do so I would not be able to provide treatments.

I require all clients to keep me updated as to any changes in their health and medical conditions.

All information you give me during your initial consultation and in subsequent sessions will be treated as private and confidential.

In providing contact details e.g. phone number, address and contact through Facebook Messenger, it is assumed you agree to receive details of appointments, and information relevant to your treatment via these means.

I will not use your details for marketing.

Your details will not be passed to third parties.

I keep your records for 10 years from your last appointment date in accordance with my insurance policy.
